Discussion Questions.

- Should there be guidelines on how frequently Core courses need to be taught, e.g., once in two years?
 - Rational. UK Core courses are listed in Degree Audit. It is tedious for students to go through the list of Core courses in each area. These lists require to be updated more frequently to reflect the actual Core courses being offered.
- Should Core courses be dropped from the list of approved Core courses if they are not taught for a certain length of time, e.g., four years, rather than seven years.
 - Rational. The same as above. I am not proposing to delete these courses. Instead, those courses, which have not been taught over a certain length of time will lose its Core designation. Once an instructor who can teach these courses are hired, the unit can reapply a Core designation because it is more likely that the new instructor will develop their own syllabus.
