- 1. How does this course provide for timely and appropriate interaction between students and faculty and among students? Does the course syllabus conform to University Senate Syllabus Guidelines, specifically the Distance Learning Considerations?
- 2. How do you ensure that the experience for a DL student is comparable to that of a classroom-based student's experience? Aspects to explore: textbooks, course goals, assessment of student learning outcomes, etc.
- 3. How is the integrity of student work ensured? Please speak to aspects such as password-protected course portals, proctors for exams at interactive video sites; academic offense policy; etc.
- 4. Will offering this course via DL result in at least 25% or at least 50% (based on total credit hours required for completion) of a degree program being offered via any form of DL, as defined above?

If yes, which percentage, and which program(s)?

- 5. How are students taking the course via DL assured of equivalent access to student services, similar to that of a student taking the class in a traditional classroom setting?
- 6. How do course requirements ensure that students make appropriate use of learning resources?
- 7. Please explain specifically how access is provided to laboratories, facilities, and equipment appropriate to the course or program.
- 8. How are students informed of procedures for resolving technical complaints? Does the syllabus list the entities available to offer technical help with the delivery and/or receipt of the course, such as the Information Technology Customer Service Center (http://www.uky.edu/UKIT/)?
- 9. Will the course be delivered via services available through the Distance Learning Program (DLP) and the Academic Technology Group (ATL)? NO

If no, explain how student enrolled in DL courses are able to use the technology employed, as well as how students will be provided with assistance in using said technology.

- 10. Does the syllabus contain all the required components? NO
- 11.I, the instructor of record, have read and understood all of the university-level statements regarding DL.

Course Content:

Basing our discussions on readings from Dostoevsky, as well as on works by Boris Pasternak (Doctor Zhivago), Anna Akhmatova (Requiem), François Mauriac (The Lamb), Albert Camus (The Stranger, Les Justes), and Françoise Sagan (Bonjour tristesse, A Certain Smile,), the course will look at issues of the writer and society, freedom and responsibility, cultural and spiritual values, the individual and the community.

Dostoevsky created in his novels the image of a world in which human lives are interrelated in a struggle between good and evil, where people can help, but also cause harm to each other. "Everyone is responsible for everyone and everything," in the formulation from The Brothers Karamazov. Prophetically, Dostoevsky sensed the potential popularity, especially in the West, of freedom from that moral perspective; his Ivan Karamazov argues that "all is permitted." 1957 saw the publication of Pasternak's Doctor Zhivago, which embodies a vision of interconnectedness and responsibility more endebted, perhaps, to Dostoevsky than to any other writer: "And so it turned out that only a life similar to the life of those around us, merging with it without a ripple, is genuine life, and that an unshared happiness is not happiness, so that duck and vodka, when they seem to be the only ones in town, are not even duck and vodka." Akhmatova in her Requiem expressed solidarity with the victims of Soviet repression in the 1930's,:

I was with my people then,
Where, unfortunately, my people were

Akhmatova echoes Zhivago, who says "A grown man should share the fate of his country."

François Mauriac, whose last novel, The Lamb, appeared in 1953, wrote that "...the problem facing the imaginative [French] writer...is, without rejecting anything essential in the tradition of the French novel, to enrich it with the gifts of foreign writers, English and Russian, especially Dostoevsky." Mauriac, France's leading twentieth-century Catholic novelist and recipient of the 1952 Nobel Prize for his earlier novels, particularly Thérèse Desqueyroux, was influenced by the Russian people and the moral struggles depicted by their writers: "...it's a great love for the people of Anna Akhmatova which inspires me. Since my youth, Tolstoy and Dostoevsky, and a little later Berdiaiev, Chekhov, Pasternak made the Russian people almost closer to me than my own: I mean to say that there were certain aspects of my own hidden self that I found in those authors, and that didn't exist in the dry writers of our country..." ("...c'est un grand amour pour le peuple d'Anna Akhmatova qui m'inspire. Dès l'adolescence, Tolstoi et Dostoievski, et un peu plus tard Berdiaev, Tchekhov, Pasternak me l'ont rendu presque plus proche que mon propre peuple: je veux dire qu'il y avaient certains traits de mon être secret que je retrouvais en eux et qui n'étaient pas chez les secs écrivains de chez nous..."). Camus, a lifelong admirer of Dostoevsky, was in fact above all an admirer of Ivan, and he repeats Ivan's formula in his 1957 novel The Fall: "The essential thing is to be able to permit oneself everything." The version of this perspective lived by Meursault in the summer in Algiers, in the novel The Stranger, could be called "tout est bien." In contrast with Dostoevsky and Mauriac, both of these Camus novels are first-person narratives, monologues focused on the narrators' individual freedom and separateness, as they do not focus on the consequences of their actions for others. Camus sees Dostoevsky, the Christian novelist, as having "betrayed" his character, Ivan. As much as anyone, Françoise Sagan expressed the atmosphere of liberation in post-war (democratic, bourgeois, capitalist) France. In 1954 the then eighteen-year-old author of Bonjour tristesse found herself rich, famous, and free to do virtually anything she desired. Her brief novels, offering images a new sexual freedom for women, scandalized some, but won for their young author literary prizes and worldwide popularity. But success was not an unmixed blessing; it was Mauriac who said, "The characters of Miss Sagan do not believe they have a soul; however, it exists in them, and I hear it crying out..."

Learning Objectives: By the end of this course students will be able

- 1. To demonstrate critical and analytical skills of literary texts.
- 2. To use the basic terminology and concepts relevant to the literature.
- 3. To discuss the main features, form and content of the literature.
- 4. To explain in depth the ideological concepts of the material, its roots, aims and execution.
- 5. To interpret the literature within and outside of its historical, social and political contexts.
- 6. To carry out research on various aspects on the literature.

Assignments:

Class Preparation/Participation: In the course we will read works by Pasternak, Akhmatova, Camus, Mauriac, and Sagan, and look at issues of freedom and responsibility, cultural and spiritual values, the individual and the community, and other issues in Russia and France in the 1950's. Students should read the assigned passages according to the schedule below, and be prepared to discuss them in class. Graduate students are required to lead one class discussion on a text of their choice. In preparation for this task, individuals will identify a text from a list provided by the instructor and consult with the instructor on the planning of their session. Each session will consist of a brief introduction of the author and text as well as subsequent guided discussion of the class.

Daily Reading Responses: For each class, students should write approximately one page in response to the given reading, with two goals in mind: to facilitate the class discussion, and to prepare a piece of the argument that will have a place in the student's seminar paper. These submissions should be prepared on a computer, and should quote passages that can be used as part of the argument of the paper.

Final Paper: From the very beginning of the course students should work to clarify the theme of their paper (in lieu of a final exam). If not one of the above themes, the student might choose to write about one of the following:

The writer and society. The writer and history. What is the appropriate role of the writer, or, how is the role of the writer shaped by his or her personal, or national experience? The writer's responsibility to society/to humanity. Moral values in different writers, in different countries. Harm and damage to others. What creates meaning, satisfaction, and happiness. The role of religion in different writers, societies, and national traditions. What is faith, and what sustains people? Universality and diversity across different cultures. What divisions exist within societies, and between cultures? Undergraduate students will write and present a research paper of no fewer than 15 pages; graduate students will write and present a research paper of no fewer than 20 pages. MCL/Russian majors/minors must perform research in Russian. Topics must be chosen in consultation with the instructor.

Required Texts:

Mid-term grades will be posted in myUK by the deadline established in the Academic Calendar (http://www.uky.edu/Registrar/AcademicCalendar.htm)

Course Policies:

Attendance Policy:

Attendance is required. You are expected to come to class and be prepared to work. Be on-time. Persistent tardiness can affect the outcome of your final grade.

Excused Absences:

Students need to notify the professor of absences prior to class when possible. S.R. 5.2.4.2 defines the following as acceptable reasons for excused absences: (a) serious illness, (b) illness or death of family member, (c) University-related trips, (d) major religious holidays, and (e) other circumstances found to fit "reasonable cause for nonattendance" by the professor.

Students anticipating an absence for a major religious holiday are responsible for notifying the instructor in writing of anticipated absences due to their observance of such holidays no later than the last day in the semester to add a class. Information regarding dates of major religious holidays may be obtained through the religious liaison, Mr. Jake Karnes (859-257-2754).

Students are expected to withdraw from the class if more than 20% of the classes scheduled for the semester are missed (excused or unexcused) per university policy.

Verification of Absences:

Students may be asked to verify their absences in order for them to be considered excused. Senate Rule 5.2.4.2 states that faculty have the right to request "appropriate verification" when students claim an excused absence because of illness or death in the family. Appropriate notification of absences due to university-related trips is required prior to the absence.

Making up missed work: Make-up work will only be allowed when the work is missed for one of the reasons listed in University Faculty Senate Rule 5.2.4.2 (September 2009) as "excused absences":

- "A. Significant illness of the student or serious illness of a member of the student's household (permanent or campus) or immediate family. The Instructor of Record shall have the right to request appropriate verification."
- "B. The death of a member of the student's household (permanent or campus) or immediate family. The Instructor of Record shall have the right to request appropriate verification. For the purpose of this rule, immediately family is defined as spouse or child or parent (guardian) or sibling (all of the previous include steps, halves and in-laws of the same relationship); and grandchild or grandparent"

"C. Trips for members of student organizations sponsored by an educational unit, trips for University classes, and trips for participation in intercollegiate athletic events, including club sports registered with the university as well as varsity sports. When feasible, the student must notify the Instructor of Record prior to the occurrence of such absences, but in no case shall such notification occur more than one week after the absence. Instructors of Record may request formal notification from appropriate university personnel to document the student's participation in such trips."

'D. Major Religious Holidays. Students are responsible for notifying the Instructor of Record in writing of anticipated absences due to their observance of such holidays no later than the last day for adding a class."

"E. Any other circumstances which the Instructor of Record finds reasonable cause for absence."

Academic Integrity:

Per university policy, students shall not plagiarize, cheat, or falsify or misuse academic records. Students are expected to adhere to University policy on cheating and plagiarism in all courses. The minimum penalty for a first offense is a zero on the assignment on which the offense occurred. If the offense is considered severe or the student has other academic offenses on their record, more serious penalties, up to suspension from the university may be imposed.

Plagiarism and cheating are serious breaches of academic conduct. Each student is advised to become familiar with the various forms of academic dishonesty as explained in the Code of Student Rights and Responsibilities. Complete information can be found at the following website: http://www.uky.edu/Ombud. A plea of ignorance is not acceptable as a defense against the charge of academic dishonesty. It is important that you review this information as all ideas borrowed from others need to be properly credited.

Part II of Student Rights and Responsibilities (available online http://www.uky.edu/StudentAffairs/Code/part2.html) states that all academic work, written or otherwise, submitted by students to their instructors or other academic supervisors, is expected to be the result of their own thought, research, or self-expression. In cases where students feel unsure about the question of plagiarism involving their own work, they are obliged to consult their instructors on the matter before submission. When students submit work purporting to be their own, but which in any way borrows ideas, organization, wording or anything else from another source without appropriate acknowledgement of the fact, the students are guilty of plagiarism. Plagiarism includes reproducing someone else's work, whether it be a published article, chapter of a book, a paper from a friend or some file, or something similar to this. Plagiarism also includes the practice of employing or allowing another person to alter or revise the work which a student submits as his/her own, whoever that other person may be.

Students may discuss assignments among themselves or with an instructor or tutor, but when the actual work is done, it must be done by the student, and the student alone. When a student's assignment involves research in outside sources of information, the student must carefully acknowledge exactly what, where and how he/she employed them. If the words of someone else are used, the student must put quotation marks around the passage in question and add an appropriate indication of its origin. Making simple changes while leaving the organization, content and phraseology intact is plagiaristic. However, nothing in these Rules shall apply to those ideas which are so generally and freely circulated as to be a part of the public domain (Section 6.3.1).

Please note: Any assignment you turn in may be submitted to an electronic database to check for plagiarism.

Accommodations due to disability:

If you have a documented disability that requires academic accommodations, please see me as soon as possible during scheduled office hours. In order to receive accommodations in this course, you must provide me with a Letter of Accommodation from the Disability Resource Center (Room 2, Alumni Gym, 257-2754, email address: jkarnes@email.uky.edu) for coordination of campus disability services available to students with disabilities.

Classroom Etiquette:

Students are expected to behave with respect towards other students and to the instructor. You must not talk over others, insult them or their ideas, raise your voice, sleep, write in your planner, do puzzles, read newspapers or other material unrelated to the class. This type of behavior will not only result in a reduced class participation grade, but if persistent, will result in your removal from the course.

Lateness will not be tolerated. If you are not in the classroom when class begins, you will lose class participation points for each instance. After two instances of lateness, you will receive a 0 in class participation for any further instances of lateness.

You may not use cell phones or computers (exceptions will be made for students with a disability who provide proper documentation). If I see or hear a cell phone or computer (or any other electronic device) students will receive a 0 for class participation for that day.
